THE CAROLINA MUTUAL

Fire Insurance Company,

of Charlotte, N. C.

The CAROLINA MUTUAL is a strong NORTH CAROLINA Company. It is, however, a stock company, and issues absolutely non-participating and non-assessable policies. Its mutual feature consists in a charter provision, that one-third of its directors must be POLICY-HOLDERS who are NOT stockholders elected by the POLICY-HOLDERS; this is a very strong point, the policy-holders who have great interests at stake, have a share in the management of the Company, and will always know its condition. Better than this, the CAROLINA MUTUAL deposits all premiums received at this agency to their credit with the WILMINGTON SAVINGS AND TRUST COMPANY. This makes it practically a local company. The directors of the company are:

P. M. BROWN,
Of Brown, Weddington & Co., Wholesale Hardware.
E. B. SPRINGS,
Of E. B. Springs & Co., Fertilizers and Wagons.
M. P. PEGRAM,
Cash'r First Nat'l Bank of Charlotte.
B. D. HEATH,
Of Heath Brothers, Bankers.
SAM'L E. WHITE,
President Fort Mill Man'f'g Co.
A. C. SUMMERVILLE,
Lumber and Real Estate.
J. T. ANTHONY,
Wholesale Provisions and Grain.
JOHN W. MILLER,
Real Estate and Cotton Broker,
HERIOT CLARKSON,
Of Clarkson & Duls, Att'ys-at-Law.

These gentlemen stand among the wealthiest and most successful business men of North Carolina, and their names are a guarantee of the Company's honesty, conservatism and success. We heartily recommend the Company to the property owners of Wilmington. We also represent other good companies, and do a general insurance business. Come to see us.

The Weather.

U. S. DEP'T OF AGRICULTURE, WEATHER BUREAU, WILMINGTON, N C., June 9.

Meteorological data for yesterday:

Temperature: 8 a. m., 66°; 8 p. m., 70°; maximum, 80°; minimum, 60°; mean, 70°.

Rainfall for the day, .00; rainfall for the month up to date .49 inches.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY.

For North Carolina: Cloudy weather; warmer in eastern portion; easterly winds.

For South Carolina: Increasing cloudiness, with showers Sunday afternoon; southeasterly winds.

Cotton Region Bulletin.

There was no rain yesterday in the Wilmington district of the cotton belt; but in Texas, Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana there was heavy rainfall. Maximum temperatures in the Wilmington district were recorded as follows: Wilmington, Charlotte, Newbern, Raleigh and Weldon, 80 degrees; Cheraw, Goldsboro and Lumberton, 82; Florence, 84; Greensboro, 78.

OUTLINES.

Washington news—Government employes cut out of a holiday; the Income Tax law; news of the navy. —— Free silverites—Alabama delegates to the Memphis Convention. —— The Virginia gold-brick swindler released on bail and arrested again. ——Cuban revolutionists—an expedition leaves Key West for Cuba; two hundred and ninety men well equipped and armed. —— Sensational shooting in Jacksonville, Fla.; an outraged husband shoots his wife's paramour. —— Bicycle race—the great relay run from Chicago to New York city; one thousand miles in less than sixty-five hours. —— Kentucky Democrats —warfare on the silver question. —— Free silver convention in Arkansas. —— A negro fiend lynched in Florida. —— Horrible wreck on a lumber railroad in Arkansas; several men fatally injured. —— Memorial day at Lexington, Va. —— Late foreign news—grave situation of affairs in the East; Turkey refuses to concede the demands of the powers in regard to Armenia; a naval demonstration at Constantinople. —— Weekly bank statement. —— A noted horse-thief captured. —— Two lives lost in a fire at Jacksonville, Fla. —— Shortage in a South Carolina dispensary. —— Death of ex-Gov. Parsons, of Alabama. —— Base ball games played yesterday. Chicago grain and provision market. —— Cotton spots and futures. —— New York markets: Money on call was 1 per cent; cotton quiet and steady; middling gulf 7¼c; middling uplands 7¼c; Southern flour was dull and firm; common to fair extra $2.65@3.40; good to choice do $3.50@4.25; wheat dull and firm and ½c higher; No. 2 red in store at elevator 83c; afloat 83¼c; corn dull and firmer; No. 2 at elevator 57c; afloat 58c; spirits turpentine dull but steady at 29@29½c; rosin quiet and steady; common to good strained $1.55@1.60.

Two remarkable things about the Kiel canal are that it was completed within the time specified, and for less money than the estimates, the unused surplus being $175,000.

It is said that the actual cost to the brewer of a barrel of beer which sells at from $6 to $9 is $1. That's Pennsylvania beer, from which it seems that the beer industry is a tempting one in that commonwealth.

General Clarkson, of Iowa, when not industriously engaged in trying to keep cool, occupies himself in booming Senator Allison for the Presidential nomination. If a negative, do nothing record is what is wanted in a candidate Allison would fill the bill.

The Sultan of Jahore is no more. He died in London, where he has lived for some years, a couple days ago. What gave him the most prominence was that when in full royal rig he wore $10,000,000 worth of jewels, and was sued once by an English woman for breach of promise. She proved that he fooled her, but he pleaded that he was a reigning sovereign, and therefore not under the jurisdiction of English Courts, which the Court accepted as true, and thus the woman lost the $50,000 consolation which she sued for.

That was a peculiar meeting held in Raleigh Friday night to appoint delegates to the Memphis free and unlimited silver convention, and it shows what a muddled mess the financial question is in throughout the United States. When the editor of Butler's Caucasian and S. Otho Wilson, on one side, and Octavius Coke, Ed. Chambers Smith and B. C. Beckwith, on the other, "get together" on a political question (for that's what it is), well may we ask: "Where are we at?"

What sort of a cheek must a man have, or what opinion of the intelligence of his fellow citizens must he have, when he will deliberately assert, as Senator Sherman did in his Zanesville speech, when speaking of the tariff, that "the foreigner pays the tax?" Sherman is cold but his cheek is immense.

Items of Interest Gathered Here and There and Briefly Noted.

— The Naval Reserves will meet at their armory to-day at 4.30 p. m. in dress uniform.

— There was one interment each in Oakdale and Bellevue cemeteries the past week; both infants.

— The Knights of Pythias Drum Corp will give an excursion to Carolina Beach next Friday, the 14th inst.

— The bell of St. James Church will not be rung to-day, but there will be services at the usual hours—11 a. m. and 6 p. m.

— There was four feet water in the river at Fayetteville at 8 a m. Friday; a fall of about 8 inches in the previous 24 hours.

— The new suction dredge Cape Fear arrived at Southport yesterday from Philadelphia, to work on the bar at the mouth of the river.

— Those interested should note the change of schedule that goes into effect to-day on the Wilmington, Newbern and Norfolk Railway.

— All members of Cape Fear Camp No. 254, U. C.V., are requested to meet at the City Hall this (Sunday) afternoon at 5 o'clock sharp, to attend services at St. John's Church.

— The Second Regiment Band of Charlotte is said to be meeting with great success in selling tickets for its excursion to Wilmington, which is scheduled for the 25th.

— Fire broke out at 4.10 p. m. yesterday on the roof of a one-story frame building on Wooster street, owned and occupied by Harry Perry, colored. The damage was slight.

— Services this Sunday afternoon commencing at 8 o'clock at Seamen's Bethel. All sailors will be welcomed. Friends of the Society are requested to attend and aid in the work.

— There will be no preaching at the Brooklyn Baptist Church to-day. Rev. Mr. Peele, the pastor, requests the members of the congregation to meet at the First Baptist Church.

— As a result of an ice dispute in a Georgia town, the frozen stuff is going at 10 cents per 100 pounds. But the war will soon be over, no doubt, and then the joys of the consumers will melt away.

— To-day, and hereafter, our weather reports, crop bulletins and port calendar may be found under the "Morning Star Calendar" on this page. Our readers will find the new arrangement very convenient.

— A new schedule for the steamer Wilmington is announced to-day, but does not go into effect until the 13th. She will leave to-day for Carolina Beach and the colored camp meeting ground at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

— To-morrow is the anniversary of the battle of Bethel, which was fought June 10th, 1861. Two of the present editorial toilers of the STAR were there, and they were mighty glad when the announcement was made that the enemy were "in full retreat."

Children's Day.

Sunday morning will be observed as Children's Day in the First Presbyterian Church. An attractive responsive service will be rendered by the children with bright and appropriate music. The address will be by Rev. G. W. Painter, D. D., of China. At 8.15 p m Dr. Painter will speak to the congregation. He is one of the most eminent missionaries of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

CLOSING EXERCISES

At Misses Burr and James' School—Prizes for Proficiency.

The school of Misses Burr and James closed its 31st annual session on Thursday, June 6th, after a thorough examination of the pupils in the higher and lower branches of English.

The prizes were privately awarded the following recipients, who came out highest in the golden merits obtained during the session, which is a weekly reward, when there is no failure in lessons, punctuality or deportment:

The Excelsior medal was awarded to Miss Alice Everett LeGrand, of the 5th grade, and Master J. Marion James, of the 4th grade. The prizes were as follows:

First prize of 1st grade, to Miss Katie Harlow; second do to Miss Gertrude Windley; first prize of 2nd grade, to Miss Amy Harlow; first prize of 3rd grade, to Master William Graham James; second do to Master Edward Windley; second prize of 4th grade, to Miss Etta Furpless; second prize of 5th grade, to Miss Julia Gates. Rewards for composition and writing, 1st division, to Misses Gertrude Windley and Katie Harlow; 2nd division, to Master Willie G. James.

SPECIAL ORDER.

HEADQ'RT'S WILMINGTON BATTALION, WILMINGTON, N. C., June 8, 1895.

I. The organization composing the "Wilmington Battalion" will assemble to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at 5 o'clock on Third street, in front of the City Hall, for the purpose of escorting the survivors of the Third N. C. Regiment and veterans of Cape Fear Camp to St. John's Church, where services will be held, the Rev. Dr. George Patterson preaching the sermon.

II. The procession will be as follows:

1. Pythian Drum Corps.
2. Wilmington Light Infantry, Capt. W. H. Northrop.
3. Wilmington Division Naval Reserves, Lieut. J. C. Morrison.
4. Zeb Vance Division No. 1 Uniform Rank K. of P., Capt. T. D. Meares.
5. Survivors Third N. C. Regiment and Cape Fear Camp, Col. Wm. L. DeRosset.

III. The line of march will be from City Hall to St. John's Church, returning the same route, and battalion disbanded at point of formation.

By order
LT. COMMANDER G. L. MORTON, Major.
W. J. WOODWARD, U. R. K. of P., Adjutant.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Way the Boys Are Struggling for the Pennant.

The following is the standing of the Clubs of the National League (including games played Friday); the first figures representing the number of games won, and the second figures, the number of games lost in each case:

Pittsburg, 25 and 14; Chicago, 24 and 16; Boston, 19 and 13; Cleveland, 21 and 16; Baltimore, 18 and 14; Cincinnati, 21 and 17; New York, 19 and 17; Philadelphia, 18 and 17; Brooklyn, 16 and 19; Washington, 15 and 21; St. Louis, 15 and 24; Louisville, 6 and 29.

The percentages are as follows: Pittsburg, 641; Chicago, 600; Boston, 594; Cleveland, 568; Baltimore, 568; Cincinnati, 553; New York, 528; Philadelphia, 514; Brooklyn, 457; Washington, 417; St. Louis, 385; Louisville, 171.

The scores of the games which were played yesterday will be found in the telegraphic department of the STAR this morning and should be added to the foregoing summary.

Ice in Charleston.

The people of Charleston can keep cool at very moderate cost during the hot season. They have plenty of ice at the following prices: By the ton, $8.50. At retail 100 pounds for 25 cents, 50 pounds for 15 cents, 25 pounds for 10 cents, 10 pounds for 5 cents. The daily output of the factories is about 110 tons, and there are occasional arrivals of cargoes from Maine.

The Charlotte Mutual.

Another North Carolina company is now actively at work in Wilmington. This is the "Carolina Mutual Insurance Company," of Charlotte. The Directors are among the wealthiest and most successful business men of that city, and as the announcement of the Company in the STAR states, "their names are a guarantee of the Company's honesty, conservatism and success." Messrs. Stedman & Worth are the Wilmington agents.

They All Come Here.

There were more excursions to Wilmington last year than to any city on the Atlantic coast, and from present indications the record will be broken this season. While some of these excursions leave but little money here, others contribute very liberally to the tills of the merchants, and, in the aggregate, the amount spent during the season is quite large. Besides, it is a good thing for Wilmington to have thousands of strangers as visitors every Summer.

Effect of Bicycles.

A Richmond newspaper correspondent writes as follows of the effect of bicycles on livery stables and street cars:

"The bicycle has, I am told, reduced the livery stable business to about one half of what it was before the wheels became so popular. It has been a blow at street cars and has made horses sell more cheaply than ever before heard of. A good saddle horse can be had here now for $30 or $40. Such an animal as a few years ago would have brought from $75 to $100. The number of bicycles in use in Richmond has been quadrupled in the last year. There are now hundreds of lady riders here."

Children's Day.

Sunday morning will be observed as Children's Day in the First Presbyterian Church. An attractive responsive service will be rendered by the children with bright and appropriate music. The address will be by Rev. G. W. Painter, D. D., of China. At 8.15 p m Dr. Painter will speak to the congregation. He is one of the most eminent missionaries of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Reduced Rates on the S. A. L.

On account of the meeting of the Bimetallic League, Memphis, Tenn., June 12th and 13th, the Seaboard Air Line will sell round trip tickets to that point at reduced rates, based on one and one-third first-class fare. Rate from Wilmington, $30.00.

Encyclopedia Britannica.

The STAR Britannica Department is still filling orders for the Encyclopædia Britannica. This is the latest and best edition of this great work. Issued in 25 volumes, bound in cloth or sheep. For full particulars read announcement on third page, or inquire at the STAR office

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS

Pertinent Paragraphs Pertaining Principally to People and Pointedly Printed.

— Mr. Z. B. V. Jeffrey, of Dunn, is in the city.

— Mr. J. W. Rutherford, of Columbus, Ohio, is in the city on business.

— Mr. H. L. Bowdoin left yesterday for Kenly, N. C., where he goes to do some work.

— Mrs. Walter Coney, of Savannah, is here on a visit to her mother. Her many friends are glad to meet her.

— Mr. John H. Arrington has taken a position as salesman in the dry goods department of Messrs. Johnson & Fore.

— Mrs. Brown and Mr. E. D. Brown, who have been in the city for the past few days, left yesterday for Baltimore.

— The following young men have returned from Chapel Hill: Messrs. L. G. Cutlra, Pride J. Thomas, Arthur W. Belden and E. J. Wood.

— Mr. David G. Worth, one of the trustees of the University, has returned from Chapel Hill. His nephew, Master David Bagley, of Raleigh, came with him.

— Dr. A. J. DeRosset, who has been absent from the city several months, has returned, arriving last evening from New York with his health very much improved.

—Messrs. J. H. Hartsell, Clinton; George D. Coon, Jacksonville; George Thompson, Castle Hayne; E. W. Kerr, Clinton; L. P. Best and wife were among the arrivals yesterday.

— Miss Leila McGirt, daughter of Mrs. A. G. McGirt, has returned from Greensboro Female College, where she received certificates of proficiency both in stenography and type-writing.

— Mr. J. R. Kenly, General Manager of the Atlantic Coast Line, who left last evening for New York, whence he sails for London on the 19th as a delegate to the International Railway Congress, carries with him the best wishes of his hosts of friends for a pleasant trip to "foreign shores," and a safe return to his "native land."

An Exciting Runaway.

There was an exciting runaway on Market street yesterday forenoon. A horse attached to Mr. A. H. Holmes' delivery wagon started the racket, running up South Fifth street to Market, down Market to Second, scattering frightened people on the streets. Turning into South Second street, the vehicle collided with a wagon to which two oxen were attached. This wagon was up-set, the driver thrown out and caught under the over-turned wagon, and the oxen started on a run up Second street, stampeding a horse attached to a wagon standing in front of Mr. S. W. Sanders' store. The runaways were soon stopped, however, and it was found that no one was hurt, the horses and oxen were unharmed, and the vehicles only slightly damaged.

Teachers Assembly.

On account of the Teachers' Assembly at Morehead City, the W., N. & N. Ry. will sell round trip tickets from points on its line to Morehead City, and return. Fare from Wilmington $6.90, which includes membership coupon of two dollars. The holder of this will be entitled to reduced rates at the hotel during this meeting. Tickets on sale June 15 to 30th with final limit July 30th. Passengers can leave Wilmington at 1:55 p. m. arriving at Morehead City 6:37 same evening.

Home Made Supplies.

It is such facts as are contained in the annexed paragraph, taken from the Wadesboro Messenger, that furnish proof positive that the Southern farmer is recovering his horse sense:

"Last Friday there were at least 1,000 bushels of corn and meal brought to Wadesboro on wagons. The most of it came from Stanly county. The corn sold for from 65 to 67½ cents per bushel.

"In this connection, it is a fact that not a bushel of corn has been shipped to this market from abroad this year, and there will not be, as there is the greatest plenty of the home made article in the country to supply all the wants of our people."

Colored Episcopal Ministers.

The Charlotte News of the 6th says: "Messrs. J. E. King, T. J. Bailey and Eugene Henderson, all graduates of White Hall, an Episcopal institution in Washington for the education of colored candidates for the ministry, will be ordained at St Michael's Church, city, next Sunday morning, by Bishop Cheshire. The white people of the city are invited to attend the interesting exercises. King was for a long time a barber in Charlotte and has the respect of all our people. He will probably be given a church in Raleigh."

Death of Mr. Samuel Davis.

Mr. Samuel Davis, an old and esteemed citizen of Wilmington, died yesterday morning, at his residence in this city, aged 67 years. Mr. Davis had been an invalid for some time past, and for several years was engaged in no active business. He had charge for a long time of the city circulation of the MORNING STAR. The funeral will take place this morning at 9 o'clock, from the First Presbyterian Church.

Save Your Eyes.

The care, skill and experience necessary in fitting proper glasses to the eyes is apparent to every intelligent person. Thousands of people suffer pains in the head, headache and loss of eyesight entirely from the use of inferior glasses or glasses not properly fitted to the eye. We cordially invite the public to call to see us, have their eyes examined professionally by an expert without charge, and obtain glasses if required.

Dr. M. Schwab is here on a professional trip and will remain at The Orton for a few days. This is the tenth season in Wilmington, and he has corrected hundreds of impaired eyesight. Office hours from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m.

RALEIGH HAPPENINGS.

PERMANENT IMPROVEMENT TO BE MADE ON THE STREETS.

Railroad Commission—The Telephone War—Delegates to the Memphis Convention Not Yet Appointed — Ex-Judge Shepherd — The State Fair — Hotel at Mount Airy Destroyed by Fire.

[Star Correspondence.]

RALEIGH, N. C., June 8.

Special Revenue Agent Seawell is here from Washington making examination of the Revenue office in this city. Mr. Seawell is a son of General Seawell.

The Railroad Commission decided in the loss of the bale of cotton to hold the Glendon and Gulf Railroad responsible. The Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad also handled the bale.

The meeting of the Board of Aldermen last night has brought forth much favorable comment. The report of the street committee showed that the committee had given the subject of street improvements due consideration, and that the right move for permanent improvements would soon be taken. A force of thirty hands have been employed for years on the streets, throwing mud, dirt and sand from the ditches into the streets, only to be washed away at the first rain. The greater part of this force will be dropped. Four of the most attractive streets in the city—those around the Capitol—are to be paved. The Legislature passed a resolution several years ago agreeing to meet half of the expenses in paving whenever it should be done.

The number of arrests in the city during May was 106.

A prominent Populist, who got some of the fusion spoils from the Legislature, tells me that he believes there will be a triple fusion in the next campaign. He says the silver men are not going to be trifled with, and that the Republican, Democratic and Populist silverites will put up silver candidates for the Presidency. He gives it as his opinion that none of them will be able to win, split up this way, and that it will result in a triple fusion; a new candidate will be selected for the Presidency, on which all silver men can unite, and that their candidates hauled down will be given seats in the Cabinet. As was said, this is a prominent Populist's irridiscent dream.

The telephone war is still at a standstill. Attorney General Osborne and Governor Carr, of course, decline to talk on the subject. Manager Glass has written a letter which will soon be in the hands of Mayor Russ in which he defends himself against the statement made by Governor Carr that he had promised to remove the poles from the sidewalk in front of the mansion. Mayor Russ says the fact is on record where Governor Carr made application to the Board of Aldermen last year asking permission to make improvements on the same sidewalks where the poles now stand. The city charter says the street is 66 feet wide. A measurement shows the sidewalks to be included.

Mr. Mid. Leach who presided over the silver meeting last night, has not appointed the delegates—fifteen—to the Memphis Convention. He says he will not make the appointments until next week. It is interesting to know whether he will name populists on the delegation or not.

Ex-Judge Shepherd delivered the address at the Raleigh Male Academy yesterday. The subject of his address was "Truth."

Col. Jule Carr is expected in the city to-day. The date of holding the State Fair will be decided upon. The different committees will also be named.

The Renfro Inn at Mount Airy was destroyed by fire early this morning. The guests of the house escaped with very little of their effects. Capt. W. H. Pemberton, conductor on the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad, lost his clothes, money and watch.

The City Markets.

The city markets yesterday were abundantly supplied with vegetables and berries. Plums and cherries were in moderate supply, and there were a few cantaloupes and June apples on sale.

Cantaloupes sold at 20 to 35c apiece; apples, 10c per quart; blackberries and huckleberries, 5c per quart; strawberries, 5 to 10c per quart; plums, 5c, and cherries 10c per quart.

Green peas are still in market, selling at 15c per peck; new potatoes 15 and 20c per peck; snap-beans 15c; beets, 5c per bunch; cabbage, 5 to 10c per head; turnips, 5c per bunch; onions, 5c; lettuce, two heads for 5c; cucumbers, 50c per dozen; squash, 20c per dozen; green corn, 20c per dozen ears.

In the fish market, there were small mullets at 10c per string; blackfish, 10c; sturgeon, 5c per pound; softshell crabs, 40 to 50c per dozen; channel crabs, 10c per dozen; clams, 15c per quart; oysters, 10c per quart.

Poultry was in limited supply; grown fowls selling at 30 to 40 cents apiece; spring chickens 20 to 25c; eggs, 12½ and 15c per dozen.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

BAKED STUFFED HAM.—Wash the ham well, put in a pot of hot water and let it boil three hours. When nearly cold take off the skin, make a rich dressing of one loaf of baker's bread, three large onions chopped fine, one large tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of celery seed, one of ground sage, one of thyme, a plentiful supply of pepper, and salt to taste. Make deep incisions in the ham and fill them with the dressing in such a way that when cut each slice may have some of the dressing in it. Beat two eggs well, mix with cracker crumbs and spread over the top, then sprinkle over that a little brown sugar. Bake slowly for two and a half or three hours, basting frequently with the juice that runs from the ham.

APPLE DESSERT.—An elegant way to use apples for a dinner dessert or a luncheon is to remove the cores, steam them until tender, and then fill the hollow left by taking out the core with candied fruit. Select apples that are large and tart and have red skins. For the filling in eight apples use four ounces of candid cherries and two of candied pineapples. Chop the fruits and simmer in a half cupful of sugar and a cupful of water. Arrange the apples when cooked on an ice cream dish or a chop plate; fill the centres heaping full of the fruit, draining it free from the syrup. Boil the syrup until thick as honey, flavor with vanilla or good sherry, and baste the apples with it. Serve cold with whipped cream heaped around the apples just before serving.

Is is with pleasure I announce my connection with the dry goods establishment of Messrs. Johnson & Fore, No. 111 Market street, and invite my friends and acquaintances to call on me there.

MORE ABOUT COTTON.

THE NEW CROP MAY NOT BE OVER 7,000,000 BALES.

The World is Consuming 170,000 Bales Per Week—The Acreage Is Undoubtedly Reduced—Same Reports From All Over the South.

The Augusta Chronicle says: The Chronicle of yesterday published an article reliably estimating that the next cotton crop would not be more than 7,500,000 bales at the outside, with the probabilities decidedly in favor of a crop of 7,000,000 bales. The manipulators have endeavored to demonstrate that there has been no reduction in acreage, and that the coming crop would be very large. But their efforts will prove to have been in vain. Any man who comes in touch with the planters of the South must recognize that there has been a reduction in acreage of not less than 15 per cent. Galveston says so; New Orleans says so; Georgia says so and New York and Liverpool may as well confess it.

It is pointed out that the world continues to consume 170,000 bales of cotton every week and that there are yet many weeks before October, when the new crop will commence to come into market in earnest. Although the recent crop has been somewhat large it is not inexhaustible and in the face of a small crop for the coming season the bears will find that they have been reckoning without their host.

The assertion that the growing crop is comparatively small is not based on speculation alone. It is founded on good common sense. From all over the South come the same reports to the effect that the acreage is reduced. Aside from this concrete statement, there is every reason to assume that such would be the case. The farmers, in common with all our people, have passed through a period of depression which impressed them more emphatically than any argument with the necessities of living more at home than ever before. The Chronicle has shown from official figures that the farmers of this locality have bought only one-seventh as much corn this year as they bought last year. While this may have been exceptional, there is every reason to believe that the same policy has practically prevailed all over the South, and the farmers are planting more corn than ever before and are accordingly reducing their cotton acreage.

It is not believed that to any considerable extent our farmers have been carried away by the recent advance and induced to increase their acreage from what it was their original intention to plant.

In addition to all this, it must be remembered that a season so favorable as the last will not, in all probability, occur agrin in a decade. It was well nigh perfect, so that all the uncertainties of the coming months are against the growth of cotton as compared with last year. These are some facts which the manipulators will do well to remember.

That "Inaccessible" Swamp.

There are many amateur gunsters "watching and waiting" for Dixon, alias Isham, alias Slade, and that hundred-dollar reward. They all know that the murderer is "in the swamp," because they have seen him (in the distance), several times; but they all agree that the swamp is "inaccessible"—and that it will be as long as the outlaw persists in toting a musket and a shot-gun and an unknown quantity of dare-devil courage.

The STAR ventures to suggest that a barbed-wire fence, twelve feet high, be "built" around the swamp, that the artillery come out and "shell the woods," and that the amateur gunsters throw away their fowling-pieces and set bear traps for the outlaw in all the hog paths running into the swamp.

S. C. Horse Marines.

The Columbia correspondent of the News and Courier writes:

"Adjt. Gen. Watts has written to the navy department in Washington that the Naval Reserves will be ready to go out on a cruise about July, and that at least one hundred men and officers will go on the cruise. Commander Pinckney expects to go to Beaufort to inquire into the desires of the Naval Reserves of Beaufort. General Watts expects the department to arrange for the cruise at once. The men are expected to provide their own mess gear, hammocks gear, and cost of rations, which will be about 30 cents per man will be paid by the State. It will be fixed later on whether the Reserves will spend their nights on land or not.

New York Truck Market.

A dispatch to the STAR from New York, says of the market for Southern fruits and vegetables yesterday: "Moderate receipts and a comparatively light demand, as is usual on Saturday, with prices not disturbed to any extent."

A Chicken Thief.

Early yesterday morning police officers McClammy and Gore encountered a negro with a bag of chickens on Campbell street. The fellow ran but dropped the bag containing the fowls which proved to be the property of Mr. Mike Carroll to whom the fowls were returned.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1895

THE PER CAPITA HUMBUG.

During the tariff reform agitation the defenders of the high protective tariff were in the habit of quoting statistics to prove that this country had prospered and grown wealthy under the protective system, and that therefore it was a good thing and should be perpetuated. They pointed to the $60,000,000,000 of wealth as reported in the census of 1890, and with a triumphant air exclaimed that this gave us a per capita of $1,000. The reader who knew little about the condition of this country and judged it by those speeches and the statistics quoted, would come to the conclusion that the American people were a pretty comfortably fixed people with their $1,000 per capita, and probably couldn't understand why there should be so much racket raised over the tariff, or why anybody should assert that the people of this country were being plundered and impoverished by it.

But if the reader became aware of the fact that one-half of these $60,000,000,000 was owned by 30,000 persons, and then took a peep into the statistics of indebtedness and deducted this from the grand aggregate he would soon understand how little this per capita way of distributing wealth amounts to and how there can be a great deal of poverty in a country which the statistics builder makes very rich.

As an illustration of this. There was a few days ago a marriage at Lenox, Mass. The bride, a Miss Sloane, was a granddaughter of Commodore Vanderbilt. The groom, a Mr. Burnett, was the grandson of an iron moulder, who established a large iron business, which made his family an immensely wealthy one. The guests assembled at that wedding (not many in number) represented over $1,300,000,000 or over one sixtieth of the total wealth of the United States in 1890, and yet there were less than thirty families represented in that gathering of multimillionaires.

This thing of taking the wealth of the Vanderbilts, Astors, Goulds, &c. and dividing it out among their poor neighbors to give each a respectable per capita may do very well and look very well in the eyes of the unsophisticated stranger who doesn't know any thing about it but as a matter of fact it is a humbug of colossal proportions and means nothing. On the same principle they might divide the number of acres of land within the boundaries of the United States by 65,000,000 which would give so many acres to every man, woman, and child and point to that as a proof of our great prosperity.

About on a par with this, or worse, is the per capita humbug as to the amount of money in circulation, which they figure out at from $24 to $25, varying slightly at times. To make this per capita they take all the money which can be found anywhere, whether it has seen the sunlight in twelve months or not, and put it down as part of the money in circulation, and thus they figure up at present about $24 for every man, woman and child between the two oceans. They count the $625,000,000 of gold in alleged circulation; but how often does one see a gold coin passing around? Some of it is hid away in cellars and garrets, but the bulk of it is hoarded in the vaults of the money handlers who buy and sell it for the profit there is in it. As a part of the circulation it doesn't figure. There are $346,000,000 of greenbacks in alleged circulation. How many greenbacks are seen in actual circulation? The men who manipulate the gold and hoard it for speculation manipulate the greenbacks, for it is through the greenbacks they get into the United States Treasury and drain it of its gold. Much of the silver is locked up to create the impression that the people do not want it, have no use for it and therefore there is no need to coin any more. About the only money seen in actual circulation is the national bank note and the silver certificate. Take out the gold, greenbacks and Treasury notes which are hoarded, and the silver which is locked up in the Treasury vaults, and there is probably not half the amount of money in circulation alleged to be, and instead of $24 per capita we would not haye over $10, if so much. That would be the average for the whole country while in some States of the South and West the per capita would not reach one half of that.

But this is the kind of figuring by which the anti silver men undertake to prove that this country is prosperous, has money enough, and therefore does not need any more. With all this boasted wealth and abundance of money, the man who could put his hand into his pocket and pull out $10, or command at one time his alleged $25 per capita, would be the exception to the rule, and the exception by a very large majority, too. The per capita business looks very well on paper, but when simmered down to a matter of fact it doesn't pan out at all. It is a statistical delusion, invented to humbug the credulous and bolster up falsehood.

MINOR MENTION.

There hasn't been much said about it, but the drain on the Treasury has been going on right along over $55,000,000 of gold having been drawn out since the first of January. There hasn't been any rush to attract attention, but the drain has been going on day after day This gold was taken out on greenbacks and Treasury notes presented for redemption, seven-eighths of which were presented for redemption at New York city. It is said that the Treasury officials have become disturbed at this steady drain upon the Treasury, which hasn't been embarrassed because the payments from the syndicates which took the last loan have kept it supplied. But how long will it be before the note holders will began to break in on this new supply, and when they do how long will it take them to clean it up? And when that is cleaned up, or it becomes apparent that it will be, what then? More bonds? Of course; that's all the Treasury can do, for it has no other way to keep up the gold reserve to continue the redemption of those old greenbacks which are kept on hand to yank the gold out of the Treasury. If the Treasury could lock up the greenbacks as they are redeemed there might be an end sometime to this redeeming business (redeeming so-called, but more properly swapping) but as it can't lock them up it must turn them loose and go on with the redeeming process indefinitely, and when it gets short on gold borrow some more. Of course the Secretary of the Treasury, if he so decided, could fall back upon the law, redeem these notes in coin, plank down silver dollars and put a stop to this Treasury raiding; but for some reason which the plain, unsophisticated citizen doesn't understand the Secretary of the Treasury prefers to let the silver lie there and the gold-gobblers hold them by the throat. And that's what's the matter with the Treasury.

* * *

If the free coinage of silver would make money 'cheap' in this country, how is it that money is so "cheap" in Great Britain, which runs exclusively on the gold basis? Next to France we have in this country the largest so-called per capita circulation in the world, running over with money, as it were, according to the representations of the anti silver men, and yet when we undertake to build a railroad of any magnitude, or engage in any other enterprise that requires a great deal of money, bonds for the purpose are placed upon the English market because their money is so much 'cheaper' than it is in this country and can be commanded in larger amounts. If there be anything in the theory that the character of the metal makes the money dearer or cheaper, it ought to be dearer in Great Britain than in this country, where the reverse is the case. Of course each metal has its relative value, but the price for the use of the money made out of one or the other metal will depend upon the supply of either, and the demand for either. Either gold or silver might become so abundant as to become "cheap," as the phrase goes, but only an absolute drug of either would make it so cheap as to be worthless. But the cheaper money is consistent with a reasonable value, the better. Cheap food may be a bad thing in some respects for the man who produces it, but it is a good thing for the human family, and so "cheap" money may be a bad thing in some respects for the man whose business it is to lend it, but it is a good thing for the human family. Coin money never becomes so cheap that it does not render the world valuable service.

* * *

After dragging its slow length through the courts for more than a year, the pension case of Judge Long, of Michigan, has been decided, and Commissioner Lochren has been sustained. Judge Long had been drawing a pension of $50 a month. After the disability act was passed he secured a re rating and the pension was raised to $75 a month. The ground, and the only ground on which this extra allowance could be made under the law was total disability to earn a support. Judge Long is an Associate Justice on the Supreme Court of the State, and is able-bodied enough to draw $7,000 a year salary, and hence Commissioner Lochren couldn't understand by what construction of the law he came in under the head of those totally incapacitated to earn a support. He accordingly notified Judge Long that unless he showed cause why he was entitled to the extra $25 a month, which he had been drawing for some time, he would cut it off. He failed to respond, the extra was cut off, and Judge Long went into the courts and secured from the district court in Washington a mandamus requiring Commissioner Lochren to pay the amount withheld, upon which the Commissioner appealed to the Court of Appeals, which has sustained his ruling, decided that a pension is not a vested right, and that the Commissioner of Pensions has a right to review and revise a decision of his predecessor. This sustains Commissioner Lochren in the position he took, knocks the Michigan Judge out and affects not only his case but numerous other cases in which Commissioner Lochren has taken similar action.

Uncle Sam is pretty slow in paying up sometimes but he generally comes to time if he gets time enough. He recently made out a check for 35 cents, a balance due to an Albany, N. Y., man for over thirty years. Uncle Sam will save the money and be ahead that much, as the recipient of the check will have it framed and leave it as a curiosity for his posterity.

Mr. Edward Atkinson says the total cost of the dinner which he gave to fourteen persons in Washington recently, embracing some members of the cabinet, was only $3. Here is a pointer to the politicians who contemplate giving "harmony dinners." They had better let out the contract to Mr. Atkinson, with his Aladdin Oven.

Senator Carter, of Colorado, chairman of the Republican National Committee, says he will not divorce himself from the Republican party, as reported, if it doesn't go for free silver. The denial was unnecessary. They seldom do that way.

THE SONG I NEVER SING.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

As when in dreams we sometimes hear
A melody so faint and fine,
And musically sweet and clear,
It flavors all the atmosphere
With harmony divine;
So, often in my waking dreams,
I hear a melody that seems
Like fairy voices whispering
To me the song I never sing.

Sometimes when brooding o'er the years
My lavish youth has thrown away,
When all the glowing past appears
But as a mirage that my tears
Have crumbled to decay,
I thrill to find the ache and pain
Of my remorse is stilled again,
As, forward bent and listening,
I hear the song I never sing.

A murmuring of rhythmic words,
Adrift on tunes whose currents flow
Melodious with the thrill of birds,
And far-off lowing of the herds
In lands of long ago,
And every sound the truant loves
Comes to me like the coo of doves,
When first in blooming fields of spring
I heard the song I never sing.

The echoes of old voices, wound
In limpid streams of laughter where
The river Time runs bubble-crowned,
And giddy eddies ripple round
The lilies growing there;
Where roses, bending o'er the brink,
Drain their own kisses as they drink,
And ivies climb and twine and cling
About the song I never sing.

An ocean surge of sound that falls
As though a tide of heavenly art
Had tempested the gleaming halls
And crested o'er the golden walls
In showers upon my heart
Thus, thus, with open arms and eyes
Uplifted toward the alien skies,
Forgetting every earthly thing,
I hear the song I never sing.

Several men took the law in their hands, drove out to his house and gave him a severe whipping. Three men were arrested and were brought to trial before Esquires W. R. Mann and Allen Whitaker. Mr. Barnes' wife and son vouched for the truth of his statements. Two of the men were bound over and one proved an alibi.

Mr. Samuel Willis, about 70 years of age, while burning off some new land was accidentally burned to death. He was found by Mr. Benjamin Martin in the afternoon lying in a ditch in the burned district, badly injured by the fire. He was removed to his house where he died that night at 11 o'clock. He uttered a few words when questioned but not intelligibly. It is supposed that he caught on fire in efforts to save a fence which had caught, and that he either then fell in the ditch or jumped in in the hopes of better extinguishing the flames about his person.

South African Bushmen.

Civilization is making rapid strides in South Africa, but the bushman yet makes his own knife and with considerable ingenuity. They dig a little iron, find a broken hatchet or a hoop from a rum barrel, and out of these parts they form even axes, adzes, hammers and about everything they need in that line. These implements are of course very crude, but the native has much patience. —Hardware.

John Herschel could remember every figure of the long and abstruse mathematical calculations made in his astronomical work. He often made a long calculation, then called his amanuensis and dictated the whole from memory.

Dr. Johnson had a loud, harsh, dictatorial voice. When excited in argument, he raised his voice and overwhelmed his opponent by its strength.

An Extremist.

Mr. Irving tells a good story of an old Scotchwoman living not far from Balmoral who criticised the queen somewhat hostilely for having ridden out on a Sunday. Met with the retort that Christ himself plucked ears of wheat on the Sabbath, the orthodox person exclaimed: "Ah, yes. I ken all about that, and I dinna think any the better on him for it!"—Westminster Budget.

HER SILVER SPOONS.

THEY REMAINED HER PROPERTY, BUT WERE VERY COSTLY.

After Buying Them Three Times She Refused to Risk Them Any More—A Little Story Bearing on the Question of the Wife's Property Rights.

The following story was told in a paper read by Mrs. M. J. Coggeshall at a meeting of the Woman's Suffrage society of Des Moines and published in The Saturday Review of that city:

Today, when we women have not outgrown the pretty fad of collecting souvenir spoons, the great variety and beauty of which were unknown to our grandmothers, allow me to recall the story of a great aunt of ours who also loved spoons, but whose plain cupboard drawer contained no sets of dainty after dinner coffees like those from which we love to sip as we sit in our clubs and talk of culture.

This aunt when a young woman was a teacher in a country school until she had saved enough money to indulge her great desire for a set of silver spoons. She was married soon after to the young man of her choice. Six years passed by —years of hard work and economy for both, happy years, though no children had come to bless their union—when by a sudden illness the husband was taken away. The day after the funeral the grieved wife was surprised by the entrance to her home of the two brothers of her husband, bringing with them the village lawyer. They told her they had come to set a value upon their brother's property, in order that she might know what part of it was hers.

She held her peace as they set down the worth of each article of furniture in the little home, until they finally came to the box of spoons.

Then she spoke and said: "These are mine. I bought them with my own money before I was married."

"Yes, ma'am," said the lawyer, "but you know, ma'am, that after a lady is married everything belongs in law to her husband."

So all the little property was divided, the brothers taking half, and she took the spoons with the rest at the price that had been set upon them. But it obliged her to give up the home, and she, with her few effects, went into rented rooms and began life anew. Occasionally teaching a school and always sewing when possible, she supported herself very comfortably for about three years, when a lifelong friend of her husband, an excellent man, offered her his hand in marriage.

She liked him well, and her friends told her it was the best thing to do, and she thought with pleasure of again being mistress of a home. So they were married.

In a few years her husband's health declined, and for many months she gave him most tender and unceasing care. She had a few times spoken to him about making a will, but as it seemed an unpleasant subject she had ceased to mention it. Finally the end came. There had come to attend the funeral his nearest relative, a nephew from New England, whom she had never seen before. In a day or two he brought two men to the cottage to appraise the property, and again was there a price set upon the well preserved spoons. On the evening of that day as she was preparing supper the nephew entered the kitchen and said: "Aunt Liza, I am disposed to be very easy with you. The worth of all of uncle's property has been carefully estimated, and I will allow you to include in your half of it any article of furniture you may choose."

And again she paid the price of her first darling purchase of silverware, but there was not enough left after the half was taken for her to keep the house and lot, so they went into the hands of strangers, and with her cat Aunt Liza again went into cozy, but hired rooms. She was a pattern of thrift and tidiness, as a smart widower of the neighborhood was well aware, and in less than a year he made a call upon the comely matron. He was wise enough to make his first visit short, but lingered a moment in the door and suggested that in the near future they become better acquainted.

She answered, "I am living here very comfortably, and I think, Mr. Johnson, that it will not be worth while for you to call," and closing the door hastily she turned to her cat and said:

"No, Tommy, I have bought those spoons three times, and I don't intend to risk them any more."

Bought the Ship That Brought Him.

An interesting anecdote is told of the late Captain Theodore Julius. Some time ago Captain Julius went over to a shipyard in Camden to take a look at the old packetship Tonawanda, which was being converted into a coal barge. The captain took a particular interest in the old ship, because of his having served as mate aboard her in the early sixties. While he stood watching the old vessel, a tall stranger approached him and asked, "Isn't your name Julius?" The captain replied in the affirmative. "You were a mate on that ship in the summer of 1863?" "Yes," said the captain. "You don't remember me," continued the stranger, "but I remember you very well. I was a steerage passenger on the Tonawanda at that time, being on my way to this country. I've been pretty prosperous, and I've just bought the old ship and am going to make a coal barge of her. Strange, isn't it, that I should come to own the ship that brought me, practically penniless, to this country?"—Philadelphia Record.

A Misapprehension.

"One think," exclaimed Fenderson, "of the many uses to which paper is now put!"

"I know," replied Bass. "I was at the theater the other night, and I was told it was all paper, and it was a fine, substantial looking structure too."—Boston Transcript.

A VISIT FROM THE DEVIL.

How His Satanic Majesty Once Made His Appearance In Bungay.

A rare pamphlet in the library of the editor of a department of The Republic bears the following quaint title: "A Strange and Terrible Wunder Rought Verie Lately In the Parish Church of Bungay—namely, on the fourth of thys August in the Yeere of our Lorde 1577." The story, stripped of the quaint language in which it is couched, and briefly told, is as follows: A storm of extraordinary fury raged during divine services in the church alluded to; rain fell in torrents, and the lightning flashed "blue, red, green and in a mixture of indescribable colors," while the thunder peals "not only disquieted men and dumb creatures, but senseless things devoid of all life and feeling trembled and shook with terror."

While the tempest was at its height, a fiend from the lower regions appeared in the midst of the terror stricken congregation. The account says: "It was in form, as well as could be discerned, of an enormous dog, of black color, the sight whereof, together with the fearful flashes of fire which then were seen, moved many minds to the belief that the end of time had come, and that doomsday was upon us. The evil one, for he it was in such strange likeness, ran with extraordinary speed into that portion of the church where the majority of the congregation was seated. In doing so it passed between two persons who were upon their knees in the attitude of prayer, grasped and wrung the necks of both in an instant, so that they died presently as they knelt. As he passed by another he gave him such a grip on the back that he was drawn together and instantly shrunken up like a piece of leather scorched in a hot fire."

Leaving the church at Bungay, the devil is said to have "flown with a greate noise and rustling" to the church at Blibery, seven miles away. He was seen to alight upon the roof and to instantly pass through it, dropping from the vaulted ceiling upon the heads of three persons (two men and a boy,) who were all instantly killed, "beying scratched bye the horyd thing and burned to nearlie a cracklyng."

The "Book of Wonderous Visitations," published in 1687, 110 years after the events mentioned above, says that the prints of the devil's claws where he ran down the nisle of the Bungay church were then still plainly to be seen.—St. Louis Republic.

THE VIOLET.

Back from the road
Where the beech tree's shade,
Near the running brook
A cool bower made,
I wandered one morn
When the June was sweet
And the violets clustered
About my feet,
And I said as I plucked them,
Stooping down,
"Sweet country treasures,
Ye shun the town!"

But my city home
Had a call for me,
And I left the brook
And the droning bee
And hied me back
To the crowded street,
Bearing a breath
Of the violets sweet.

And within my yard,
Where the rose tree made
For the edgmonette
A cooling shade
I found some blossoms
Of starry blue
As modest and sweet
As the brookside knew.

PATRICE & CO.

Mr. Alexander Paxton was in town for six weeks. He had been charge d'affaires for an intolerable time at a certain small capital—the city had seemed at all times the reverse of a capital to Paxton—and now this morning he was having an interview with an important person.

The new berth was twice as valuable as the last, and the heart of Alexander Paxton beat pleasantly. Even in the diplomatic service promotion sometimes comes.

"You are married, I think, Mr. Paxton?" said the important person. "You must bring Mrs."—

"Excuse me," said Paxton, flushing. "No, I am not yet married."

"Oh!" But the person seemed scarcely inclined to credit the assertion. It conflicted with an impression—erroneous, but still an impression—that he had got into his head. "Oh, that's singular, now."

"It is singular," confessed Paxton.

"I should have preferred a married man for the post." The person blew gently on the edge of his eyeglass a snatch of a popular air. "I should have much preferred, ve-ry much preferred—in fact, I'm afraid in this case it's almost indispensable."

"It's an omission that can perhaps be remedied," interrupted Alexander Paxton hastily. He became quite nervous at the mere thought of losing the appointment. "If you think it would be advisable."

"I do; I do," with an air of great relief. "Thank you, Mr. Paxton. That's better. You'll hurry affairs on, will you? Get the event over before you sail if possible. That's right. Shall we say good morning? Good morning. Call in again before you go and leave your address now with one of the secretaries. This is your stick, I think?"

Mr. Paxton came out into Whitehall with a mixed air of elation and perplexity. He walked nearly to Charing Cross before he remembered that he was going in the wrong direction. Then he returned. The only woman in London refused him last night—she still seemed to him the only woman in London—but he would try her again.

"Scott!" cried Paxton.

It was only a hansom going swiftly by that caused the exclamation. A face looked over the splashboard—a girlish face with a bonnet atop that looked like, not a bonnet, but a mere accidental bunch of flowers. Mr. Paxton hailed an empty cab.

"Here, hansom!"

"Right you are, sir. Same old keb. Same old driver."

"Do you see that cab going along there with the yellow wheels?"

"Jest by Dover Abse, sir!"

"That's it. Catch it up and follow it."

"I'm on it, sir."

Alexander Paxton sat in his hansom, and as it went along quickly he thought.

"There's no one else," he said to himself. "She said 'No' last night at the Boilers, but we parted very good friends. A woman whose husband has been dead for three years ought to marry again. I'll call at her flat in Victoria street, anyhow."

But the cab with the yellow wheels went past Victoria street. It went past Victoria station. It pulled up eventually at an artistic little shop with a name over the window—Patrice.

Mr. Paxton paid his cabman and sent him off. When he was tired of waiting, he took a long breath and went into the shop.

"What can we have the pleasure of showing you, sir?"

Alexander Paxton looked around the shop. She was not there. One or two customers were there examining furniture and wall papers, but she was not to be seen.

"I wanted to see"—he began hesitatingly.

"Madame? Certainly, sir. Will you step this way, please?"

Mechanically Paxton followed into a pleasant little place, half office, half room. She rose from a desk and thrust her pencil between the folds of her bodice.

"My dear, are you, then, Mme. Patrice?"

"Why, yes, Mr. Paxton. You didn't know, I dare say."

"I thought you had money of your own?"

"So I have. But I have to earn it. One has to work for a living nowadays, you know, but it doesn't do to brag about it."

She flushed rather prettily—a gift of the gods that is rare—and seemed nervous.

"Do you know," she went on, "I am glad to see you again. I wanted to ask you about your late berth, but last night we were—we were speaking of other matters."

"We were," acknowledged Alexander Paxton. "And I am quite ashamed of myself to come to you again. But I love you so much, my dear, dear"—

She went hastily to the door of the office and closed it carefully.

"And you told me that you did care for me, and if that is so I really can't see why in the world we shouldn't be happy."

He told her frankly of the morning's interview in Whitehall. She sat on the other side of her desk, and leaning forward in her chair clasped one knee and looked straight before her. A line or two of worry showed on her white forehead.

"Do you mind," she said when he had finished, "do you mind if I say once more 'No?'"

"Yes, I do, dear."

She sighed and opened a drawer of her desk.

"I am glad to believe that you do mind."

"If you won't marry me, I shall give up the appointment. I must chance something else turning up. Only I should like to have had it. And I do love you, dear, and I would"—

"The firm of Patrice & Co.," she replied, with affectation of light heartedness, "must not listen to these things. It is not art furniture, and it is not decoration.

Patrice & Co. has a reputation for these things, but it does not deal in the affections."

He rose, too, and looked around for his hat.

"The name of Patrice," he said, "reminds me of a wild Irishman whom I had to do with before I left for England. He used to call himself by that name, and he was— Oh, here's my hat. I've taken up a lot of your busy minutes I'm afraid."

She had turned and was affecting to turn over some papers.

"Tell me about—about this Mr. Patrice, please."

"Oh, it was only the name that reminded me of him. Fearful young scamp of a fellow he was. Told me, I remember, when I got him out of his first row, that he had come out there to drink himself to death."

"Yes?" anxiously and breathlessly.

"He was a queer fish. Drank like a queer fish too. When he was sober, he was maudlin and repentant. He told me once, I remember, in a burst of confidence, that he had a young wife in England who had declined, after a month of married life, to put up any longer with his disgraceful behavior. He charged me never to let her know where he was, so that she should always be in doubt. And I didn't because"—

"Why, please?"

"For the good reason that he never told me who she was."

The papers seemed to require much sorting and arranging.

"Some of us paid his debts once or twice."

"Ah, that was quite useless."

"So we found. But one couldn't help feeling for him at first. Whenever I feel that the world is using me badly, as I do now, I think of Patrice. Then I am more contented."

The troublesome papers were in order at last. A hasty touch of the handkerchief to the eyes, and she turned round, looking nearly herself again.

"Mr. Paxton, will you wait outside for me a moment or two? You might see me back to Victoria street."

Alexander Paxton looked over a book of sample wall paper in the shop until the firm had put on its preposterous little bonnet and its cloak and was ready. Then the two walked slowly down in the direction of her flat.

"When did you see poor Mr. Patrice last, Mr. Paxton? Do you remember the exact date?"

He looked in his pocketbook and told her. They talked about other matters until they found themselves at Camford Mansions.

"I once knew a man who seems to me to answer the description of the Patrice you were speaking of just now," she said hesitatingly. "He was walking one of the hospitals when I met him. I was 18 then. I believe I have his portrait up stairs. Come up and tell me if it is the same." The photograph was found quite easily, and Paxton had no difficulty in identifying it. She rang for tea and looked out of the window with a look of increased worry on her pretty face.

"I feared so," she whispered to herself. "I shall never, never be free."

The maid brought the tea, but she could not touch it.

"And while you were there did he ever speak of returning to England?"

"Oh, no; oh, no. He didn't want to come back."

"Thank heaven!"

"I beg pardon? No, he was quite content to mix up with all the riffraff of the place."

"And you think he will never return?"

"Why, no. Oh, I didn't mention that perhaps. The poor beggar died a few months before I left. We buried him in the cemetery there. I went through his papers, and"—

"Yes?" The questioning affirmative was almost like a suppressed scream.

"There was no clew to his relatives, so nothing could be done. No, no more tea, thank you."

He held the small hand and wondered if she knew how hard it was for him not to swear at his ill luck.

"Mr. Paxton."

Alexander Paxton turned.

"I—I want to ask you to do me a favor if you will."

"Why, of course I will."

The forgotten pencil, stuck between the fold of her corsage, moved irregularly.

"You have asked me twice to be your wife."

"I am very sorry, dear. I had no right to bother"—

"And I want you some day, please—some day, but not now—to ask me just once more."

"And you will say 'Yes?'"

"I think," said Patrice & Co., "that is highly probable."—St. James Gazette.

Not an American Tune.

On one occasion when General Sherman was traveling in Europe after the war he put up at an inn in a small Irish town. The day after his arrival he was surprised to hear a band approaching playing "Marching Through Georgia." "Great heavens!" said he. "Has that tune followed me into Ireland?" A friend present suggested that he should recognize the compliment by going out upon the balcony. This he did, but the band and procession passed by without stopping or even giving any signs of an implied recognition of the American hero. The general did not know what to make of it, and turning to a person standing by said, "What is all this?"

"Och, sure, it's only a parade," was the response.

"What tune in that they are playing?" inquired the general.

"Sure, it's an old Irish air that's as old as the hills," he replied. "They've been playin it ever since I could remember, and sure I'm no kid."

The general looked subdued, and turning to his American friend said, "Verily, there is nothing new under the sun, not even 'Sherman's March Through Georgia.'"

It is said that "Dixie" is also of Irish origin.

The Czar's New Fad.

One of the fads of the new czar of Russia is the study of electricity. He is intensely interested in everything pertaining to electrical science and reads eagerly descriptions of the latest experiments and applications in that line of endeavor. He is said to have made several ingenious contrivances himself in the simpler lines of electrical manipulation. It has not always been true that a Russian czar was interested in only the peaceful relationship of Poles and batteries.—New York World.

Cæsar's Memory.

Cæsar had a memory little short of miraculous. No detail of the business of the empire ever escaped him, and once, being reminded of a lawsuit that had occurred 20 years before, he gave all the details of the case. It was said he could repeat over 3,000 lines of poetry.

Bass Cheeks a New Delicacy.

Bass cheeks are the latest gastronomical London novelty. They do not figure on cafe menus yet, and are found only at the most gorgeous private dinners. This dish is very expensive, because it takes about a ton of bass to furnish a small dish of cheeks. The cheek of a bass is a tiny nugget of the tenderest and most delicately flavored meat, found in the lower part of the head on either side. This is lifted out and the remainder of the bass is tossed away.—New York World.

The robes worn by Louis XIV on state occasions cost $19,000.

To Start the Story.

In writing a story there are authors who do not plan the course of events in advance because they do not know them, but they write on, certain that some ingenious complication will suggest itself—in short, the story is to write itself.

I confess I believe in and rather follow this system, for the reason that the incidents seem more like real life where the unexpected so often happens, and where events turn up in a capricious way. However this may be, I have always found that everything depends on getting well started—that is, started with such eagerness and enthusiasm that you could sit down then and there and write on and on to the end.

Others deliberate and potter, as it were, hover on the brink, hesitating to make the plunge. The moment of departure is put off and put off, and when at last a start is made it becomes a task and a drudgery and is virtually no start at all, because it is so labored and uninspired that you feel you have not begun.—"Memoirs of an Author," Percy Fitzgerald.

Dr. de Koven's Letter.

At a recent exhibition of dolls in Chicago a doll was shown which once had a letter addressed to it by the late Dr. de Koven, the great Episcopal high church leader. It was as follows:

MY DEAR WAX—I am glad to hear of your birth, and that you were named for me, and that you are of WAX. You could not be of better stuff for a minister. You will look sweet. This will please the young. You cannot talk too much. This will please the old. You can wink at things, which you will have to do. You will eat little; you will need but small pay. When you are bruised, you can be put on a shelf without a word, and a doll, new, fresh, and with red cheeks, will take your place. If you have to be a martyr by fire, you will melt easy and save pain to those who have to put you in, but if you do good to even one little girl like C——your life will be worth a great deal. So goodby, from your affectionate friend, J. DE K.

CHANDLER WROTE IT

THE OLD DOCTOR WANTED AN ORDER RELEASING HIS SON.

The Secretary of the Navy and President Arthur Were Going Fishing and Didn't Want to Be Bothered, but Changed Their Minds When They Heard the Argument.

In the southern part of Orleans county lives a doctor who is known far and wide among the country folk, and whose fame extends likewise into cities far from his home.

The doctor is a gentleman of the old school, courteous, with a southern accent when he becomes excited, for he was born in Virginia. The worst thing that can be said about this doctor is that he is an extremely hard swearer. He swears a little when he is calm, but when he is excited his vocabulary of invectives is almost without a rival. Many stories are told about this famous old doctor, and this is one of them:

The doctor had a son, and all his affections seemed centered in him. He resolved that this son should become a doctor, and that the father's mantle should fall upon the son's shoulders. But the boy disappointed him. When he grew up, he didn't wish to study medicine. He said he had no taste that way. No plane of life seemed to fit his ideals exactly. He tried this, and he tried that, and nothing satisfied him.

At last he decided he would go to West Point. The doctor yielded, and the son tried the preliminary examinations, passed them and was appointed a cadet. He tried the entrance examinations, passed them and at last became a real cadet at West Point. Even the old doctor was proud and happy now.

But the son did not do as well as he had expected at West Point. He found that things military in reality were not as things military in ideality. He tried the January examinations and failed. His heart was broken. Like many another youth before him, he could never bear the disgrace by going home. So he made as large a fool of himself as he could and enlisted in the navy, at the Brooklyn navy yard. His father received notice of his son's rash act and said nothing. His heart was too full. But he threw a few necessities into his grip and that very night started for Brooklyn. There he found the admiral. He told him the story. He begged him to do something for him, but the admiral could do nothing. His heart seemed broken. Was there no hope? The admiral told him he could go to the secretary of the navy, state his case, and perhaps something might be done. He could promise nothing, but at least it might be tried. The old doctor clutched at this slight hope, and without waiting to eat anything he took the very first train for Washington.

All these things happened during the first year of Arthur's administration, and, as every one knows, William E. Chandler was secretary of the navy. Arthur and Chandler were sportsmen, and whenever they had the chance they would set out on little fishing excursions of their own. Now, it happened that they were just ready to go forth upon one of these little jaunts when the old doctor arrived in Washington. He drove straight to the home of the secretary of the navy and found he was at the White House, so to the White House went the doctor post haste. He inquired for Chandler and was told that he and the president were just starting for a fishing trip and could not be seen.

"But I must see him, suh! It is very important, suh!" exclaimed the doctor. He was using his soft southern accent now, for he was very excited.

"But you can't, sir," said the servant.

"I can, suh, and I will, suh!" and with no more words he pushed the astonished servant out of his way and strode through the hall. "Where is the secretary of the navy, suh?" he asked the first person he met.

"In that room, sir," said the man, pointing.

The doctor rapped and walked in. There stood the president and the secretary, getting their things together.

"I am Dr. ——, and I've come to get my son back, suh!" said the doctor, and then he told the story of his son's mistake. The secretary looked at him and then at the president. "I'm sorry, sir," he said, "but you have come at the wrong time. We can't bother with such things now. We are going on a trip, President Arthur and I, and we do not like to be interrupted." Here he bowed and stopped.

The old doctor drew himself up, looked down at him, for Mr. Chandler is not a large man. His old eyes fairly blazed. He seemed choking. Suddenly he burst forth in a voice of passion: "Do you think that I am going to let my son stay in that ship, suh, to give you the chance to kill a few measly no account fish? Do you think I am going to break my heart so that you can have yoh pleasure? Look at me, suh! I have not eaten a thing since last night, suh! See the dust of travel upon my clo'es! Do you think that I have traveled night and day, and now I am going to be put off because you are going fishing? Who are you, suh? You are my servant, suh! Who pays yoh salary? I do, suh! Who pays yoh rent? I do, suh! Who owns the boat you go off fishing in? I do, and now, when I come to ask you to get my son out of my navy, you have not time because you are going fishing! By ——, suh, if you don't get my son off that ship, old as I am, I'll thrash yoh —— haid right off yoh body!"

The old doctor stopped, breathless. His two hearers looked at him aghast. For a minute no word was spoken. At last President Arthur said, "Chandler, I guess you'd better write that order."

Chandler wrote it, and a little later three men might have been seen engaged in discussing three bottles of claret. They were all smiling, but one of them had a look of great happiness on his grand old face. It was the old doctor.—Rochester Post-Express.

The Large Flying Squirrel.

The large red flying squirrel is interesting, but not beautiful. It is wholly nocturnal, and, like most nocturnal animals, is extremely surly and spiteful if disturbed in the daytime. It is as large as a cat, with a face like a rabbit's. Its coloring is extremely brilliant for a mammal, and in general appearance it resembles some curious monster in a Chinese painting. The fur is a rich and deep chestnut on its back, light chestnut below, its head white and its eye a dull pale gray.

The wide parachute membrane between its legs is covered with fur, and its tail is long, thickly furred and round. This squirrel does not "fly" in the proper sense of the word, but in the forests its parachute membrane answers its purpose almost equally as well as wings. It runs with a wonderful agility up the trunk of the tree, and to the end of a branch, and then takes a flying leap, with its limbs extended to the utmost and the wide flesh membrane stretched.

This "aerial slide" carries it forward and downward to a horizontal distance of perhaps 40 or 50 yards, and it is noticed that, as in the case of birds when making use of their powers of descent with fixed pinions, the squirrel throws itself upward and ascends slightly at the close of the "flight," perching on the bough it aims at, with all the lightness of a pigeon descending from a tower, to some point upon the roof below. —Spectator.

BANK STATEMENT.

Expansion in Loans—Decrease in Net Cash and Decrease in Deposits.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, June 8th.—The New York Financier this week says: A decrease in the reserve of $1,558,850 is a favorable feature of the statement made by the Associated banks of this city for the week ending June 8th.

The expansion in loans, while only $890,400 or considerably less than the weekly increase reported for the past month or six weeks, is yet a cheering sign that money is in demand although the remarkably low rate at which funds are offered, is helping to swell the loan total. The decrease of $1,611,500 in the net cash held by the banks cannot be accounted for in view of the fact that the gain from the interior during the week was not less than $3,000,000 and that the Treasury disbursements were above the ordinery. Accepting theories which have proven correct in the past, the loss might be explained by saying that the Belmont syndicate had been making another of its unexpected moves, but there is nothing to confirm this.'

The decrease of $983,600 in deposits, in view of the fact that a great deal of money was received during the week, makes the statement still more difficult of interpretation. It is known, however, that the demand for discounts is increasing and that banks doing a large percentage of this business have had a great many inquiries of late, and especially from the South. The mercantile and manufacturing demand is also increasing. The money market has not exhibited the first signs of hardening and the hope of better rates seems to be still lost in the future.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Wheat, Corn and Oats Closed Strong and Higher—Pork Products Dull With a Slight Advance.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CAICAGO, June 8.—The bears in wheat were routed to-day. Things came their way for a portion of the session, but before the close the bulls were on the wave of success and prices were moving upward with celerity. State reports were again in evidence this morning, Illinois and Michigan both reporting greatly reduced conditions. The opening was strong on them and in view of large exports from both coasts for the week, 2,991,000 bushels, the first hour was given over to realizing. About 11 o'clock there was a hardening of prices which was ascribed to the strength then appearing in oats, after which greater buoyancy developed on the estimate by the Modern Miller, that the winter wheat crop would not exceed 60 per cent. of an average. The demand from shorts was brisk and there was considerable buying for long account. July wheat opened from 80⅝ to 80¾c, sold between 79¾ and 81¼c closing at the outside—1¼c higher than yesterday. Cash wheat sold at an average advance of ¼c per bushel, closing strong with the futures.

Corn was not active but a fair day's business was transacted. Crop advances were favorable and the undertone was for that reason not so strong. When the realizing sales of wheat weakened that market temporarily corn readily yielded to the pressure, but rallied with the closing strength of the finer grain. The strength displayed by oats was also beneficial to corn. July corn opened from 52⅝ to 53½c, sold between 51¼ to 53¾c and 52 to 53¼c, closing at 52⅞c—⅜@¼c higher than yesterday. Cash corn sold at easy prices, ¼c being the average decline.

Oats were briskly traded in. Shorts were active buyers and they did not hesitate at fractions, the sentiment being that prices would reach a higher basis. At the opening it was hard to buy anything and later the difficulty was more pronounced. The September futures attracted the greatest attention, some houses being engaged in transferring their trades into that delivery. July oats closed ⅞c to 1c higher than yesterday. September closed 1¼c higher. Cash oats closed nominally very strong.

Provisions—Pork fluctuated a few cents in both directions under the influence of some scalping and unimportant trading, but lard and ribs remained about stationary. The business was not noticeably different from that of any other Saturday, a generally quiet and dull market ruling. At the close the strength of grain imparted moderate firmness to prices. July pork closed 12½c higher, July lard a shade higher, and July ribs 5c higher than yesterday. Domestic markets were firm.

SPOTS AND FUTURES

New York Sun's Review of the Cotton Market.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The Sun says: Cotton rose three to four points and closed steady, with sales of 65,600 bales. New Orleans advanced four to five points. There was a holiday in Liverpool, but that market will re-open Monday. Spot cotton here was quiet and unchanged. No sales. Port exports 13,824 bales. Southern spot markets quiet and unchanged. New Orleans was somewhat easier. Port receipts 3,162 bales, against 1,484 this day last week and 3,998 last year. The visible supply of cotton is now 3,636,000 bales, against 3,196,000 last year. Came into sight during the week 17,000 bales, making the total for the season to date 9,570,000 bales, against 7,263,000 last year.

To-day's features: There was a rise to-day, mainly owing to Southern and Liverpool buying, though there was more or less covering of shorts in expectation of a bullish acreage report by the Government Monday. Rains were reported in Louisiana, where they do not seem to be needed. The condition of the plant has improved somewhat of late, but is still backward, and the prospects point to a much smaller crop than that of last year.

The total visible supply of cotton for the world is 3,636,408 bales, of which 3,200,208 bales are American, against 3,216,009 and 3,611,800 bales respectively last year. Receipts of cotton this week at all interior towns 7,127 bales; receipts from the plantations 4,623 bales. Crop in sight 9,570,835 bales.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

GRAVE SITUATION OF AFFAIRS IN THE FAR EAST.

Turkey Refuses to Concede the Demands of the Powers Relative to Armenia—A Naval Demonstration at Constantinople May Follow—Russia and the Chinese Loan.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 8.—The Turkish ministry to-day resigned and a new cabinet is being formed with Kiamil Pasha as viceroy.

LONDON, June 8.—The gravity of the position in the far East is shown by the orders that have been issued by the war office. A large increase will be made in the stores of war munitions at Malta, Aden, and in Egypt. The small garrison on the island of Berim in the nRed sea will be reinforced by detachments of artillery and sappers. Quick firing guns will be placed in the fortifications and the fort works will be made an important naval base.

Communications proceed between London, St. Petersburg and Paris as to what combined action shall be taken if the Porte maintains its refusal to concede the demands made by Great Britain, Russia and France relative to Armenia. If the Porte persists in its refusal to grant the demands made by the three powers it has been definitely arranged to present these demands as an ultimatum and then set a fixed date for their acceptance or rejection. It is understood that Great Britain proposed in the event of the rejection of the demands that the combined fleets of the three powers make a demonstration at Constantinople, but France and Russia prefer as a first resort a conference of the European powers. The Speaker asserts that harmony between the three powers as far as diplomatic pressure is concerned is complete. Should France and Russia decline to go further the appearance of a British fleet at Constantinople may become a necessity if only to insure safety against a rising of the Turks. The paper adds that public opinion in Great Britain will compel the Government to go it alone. It would be easy to occupy first Mytelene and Samos and to make them and Cyprus a base of operations, though the eventual result might break up the Turkish Empire.

It is known that the Queen influences the Cabinet by explicit advice, amounting to instructions, concerning the attitude of the Porte. Her Majesty's interest in the question was such that she caused the full text of the Sultan's reply to the demands of the three powers to be telegraphed to her as soon as it was received by Sir Phillip Currie, British Ambassador at Constantinople. It is believed, also, that she, in several personal letters to the Czar, communicated the necessity of concerted action on the question.

The Queen has become a fervent Turkophoee. She has been excited over the stories of the Armenian atrocities and has gone far beyond her usual constitutional functions.

In the press discussion of the possible developments of the Armenian question, it is generally recognized that however successfully Great Britain may cope with Turkey, the other Powers will insist upon having a full voice in the final settlement, including the Egyptian question.

The Summer itinerary of the Prince of Wales, as officially announced, shows that it will be impossible for him to visit the United States this year if he ever had, as reported, any intention of doing so. After the Goodwood races on July 29th he will be present at the fortnight's yachting at Cowes. From Cowes he will go to Hamburg, thenc to Baden-Baden and Coburg, returning to Balmoral in September.

It is understood that the Chinese Government has decided to pay Russia five per cent. upon the Chinese loan recently raised in Paris and guaranteed by Russia. Russia drove a sharp bargain by raising in Paris the money at four per cent., thus making one per cent. on the total loan of sixteen million pounds. The terms of the loan also contain an agreement on the part of China not to contract for a loan for a period of six months. The loan is financiered by the Banque De Paris Et Pays Bas, and the Credit Lyonnaise. The success of the French capitalists in cutting out the English financiers who have hitherto handled Chinese loans, has produced an epidemic of jealousy and envy in London financial circles.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 8—Several of the leading newspapers here are advocating an International Conference on the Armenian question, urging that course as desirable in order to prevent a conflict with Turkey.

LONDON, June 8—A dispatch from Simla says the Waziristand tribesmen have made an attack upon Fort Sandeman, in the Waziri territory, killing Lieutenant Howe and eleven of his attendants.

MANCHESTER, June 8.—The Whitsuntide plate of 1,000 sovereigns for two years old, five furlongs was run to-day and won by T L. Plunkett's Bellevin.

VIENNA, June 8—Farther news from the Robendorf Valley, which was swept by a storm on Thursday, was received this morning. The previous reports of devastation and death were not in the least exaggerated. Seventy persons are known to have been killed and many others are missing.

ATHENS, June 8.—Dr. Richardson, of the American School of Archæology, has found at the site of the ancient Greek city of Eretria a sculptured head of Dyonysius, the God of Wine, several archic vases bearing inscriptions, a number of sculptured female heads and a block of stone with an inscription of fifty lines. The discovery is thought to be of great historic importance.

GOLD-BRICK SWINDLER

Released on Bail and Immediately Re-arrested by U. S. Authorities.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RICHMOND, VA., June 8.—Smith, alias Parker, the gold-brick man, who is under indictment for swindling Mr. Withers, of Gloucester county, out of $5,000, was this afternoon before Judge Isaac Christian, of Charles City and New Kent, on a writ of habeas corpus, and was bailed in the sum of $7,000. He was immediately arrested by the United States authorities on the charge of impersonating an officer of the United States mint, and recommitted to Henrico county jail. He will be before Judge Hughes, of the U. S. District Court, Monday.

Delegates from Alabama Appointed to the Memphis Convention.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BIRMINGHAM, June 8.—A meeting of the free silver Democrats met here to-night to select delegates to the Memphis Bimetallic Convention, which meets Wendesday next. Fifty-three people were present and a delegation of over 100 was selected.

At Limestone, Ala., 25 delegates to Memphis were appointed and the same number at a meeting at Gadsden.

SENSATIONAL SHOOTING

YESTERDAY MORNING AT JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA.

An Outraged Husband Shoots His Wife's Paramour—The Latter Mortally Wounded—All the Parties Prominent and Popular in Society.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., June 8.—P. M. W. Baldwin at 4 o'clock this morning shot and fatally wounded Andrew Youman, whom he found in bed with Mrs. Baldwin. He then shot at his wife and missing her concluded not to kill her, but forced her to call in the neighbors, not allowing her to dress, so that they might see the circumstances under which he had shot Youman. Baldwin had been out of town and returned unexpectedly, finding his wife and Youman in flagrante delictu, as stated above. Youman came here from Folkstone, Ga., where his parents still live. He was a young man and had been greatly befriended by Baldwin, almost making his home at the latter's house and being treated as one of the family. Mrs. Baldwin is much younger than her husband, and, in spite of the circumstances, denies that she and Youman were intimate. She says Youman was in her room to keep off burglars.

Baldwin is about fifty years old, and very popular in Jacksonville. He came here from Cleveland, Ohio, where his father, who is said to be a millionaire, still lives. Besides being wealthy the Baldwins are prominently connected, the slayer of Youman being a nephew of ex-Senator H. B. Payne, of Ohio. P. M. W. Baldwin was a gallant Federal soldier, and prominent in G. A. R. circircles. He surrrendered, but was released on a bond for $1,000, banker C. L. Engle and G. A. R. Commander McMurray becoming surety. Youman was removed to the hospital, and is expected to die before morning. Mrs. Baldwin is bitter against her husband for shooting Youman.

BICYCLE RACE.

The Great Relay Run From Chicago to New York City—1,000 Miles in Less Than Sixty-five Hours.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, June 8—The great relay bicycle run from Chicago to this city was finished by the two wheelmen on the last relay at Boulevard and Sixtieth streets early this morning. They broke the first bicycle record. As the first bicyclist rode up to the finishing point the time recorded for making the 1,000 miles was 64 hours, 57 minutes 30 seconds, which may be further reduced or increased by later calculations. But if a change is made one way or the other, it will probably only be a few minutes at the most. They were each carrying a sealed leather pouch, one blue and the other red. One pouch was for Gen. Nelson A. Miles, and the other was to be delivered to Postmaster Chas. W. Dayton. Gen. Miles was present to receive his pouch, but Posmaster Dayton was absent, and did not receive his until later. It was delivered to J. B. Macnab, who was with Gen. Miles as Mr. Dayton's representative. The relay race started from in front of the Pullman building, Chicago, at 9 o'clock on Wednesday. It was intended to demonstrate to the postal authorities the value of the wheel in delivering mail matter. It is now learned that through a serious error no message was had from Postmaster Hessing, of Chicago. It had been previously arranged to have couriers to deliver one message to General Miles from General Merrit, of Chicago, and another to Postmaster Dayton from the Chicago postmaster. L. D. Marger, bearing the red leather pouch containing the supposed message for Postmaster Dayton, came in 43 minutes ahead of the army courier, Wm. F. Murphy. It was found when the rider arrived that Munger brought a letter to Gen. Miles and none for Mr. Dayton. The second courier, Murphy, who carried a letter for Gen. Miles, both having been written by Gen. Merritt. Postmaster Dayton's secretary is unable to account for the mistake, for he said he had been notified that Chicago Postmaster Hessing had given a message to the red courier.

BASE BALL.

The Record of Games Played Yesterday

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

New Orleans—First game—New Orleans 5; Chattanooga, 12. Second game—New Orleans, 12; Chattanooga, 9.

Richmond—Richmond, 7; Portsmouth, 5.

Petersburg—Petersburg, 8, Lynchburg, 9.

Montgomery—Montgomery, 6; Atlanta, 5.

Little Rock—Little Rock, 1; Evansville, 2.

Memphis—Memphis, 4; Nashville, 4—tie game.

Norfolk—Norfolk, 9; Roanoke, 0. [This score was rendered on account of Roanoke leaving base ball field, kicking on umpire's decision in the eighth inning when the score was Norfolk, 8; Roanoke, 6.]

New York—The police narrowly averted a free-fight between the New York and Pittsburg players in the fifth inning. As Wilson scored on Killen's muff at the plate, the latter deliberately kicked him on the leg. In a second the players of both team rushed together and were squaring off when the police interfered. Mutray had to be escorted to his dressing room by the blue-coats after the game. He declared Stenzel safe at the plate in the third inning, when he was out by at least a yard. Had Stenzel been called out it would have completed a brilliant triple play. Doyle tried to reason with Murray and was ordered out of the game, the big crowd of 15,000 persons making all sorts of threats against the umpire. The Pittsburgers won on their merits, however, as they hit Rusie quite freely.

Brooklyn—Brooklyn, 9; Chicago, 8.

Boston—Boston, 17; Louisville, 8.

Baltimore—Baltimore, 7; Cincinnati, 1.

Philadelphia—Philadelphia, 7; Cleveland, 8.

TWO LIVES LOST.

A Fatal Fire at Jacksonville, Florida.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., June 8.—A fatal fire occurred to-day in the heart of the city by which two lives were lost. The alarm was sounded at 8 o'clock, and by the time the firemen reached the scene, the building, which is used as a stable on the first floor, was partially burned. The fire was soon subdued, and in the upper room was found the bodies of a colored woman named Josephine Williams and her seven-year old niece, Sallie Jones. Both had been horribly burned. The husband of the woman made his escape through the window without attempting to rescue his family.

An escaped convict and horse thief, C. C. Campbell, was arrested by the police at Lexington, Va., yesterday. He stole a horse at Bedford City, and has escaped five times from the North Carolina penitentiary.

CUBAN REVOLUTIONISTS

AN EXPEDITION LEFT KEY WEST THURSDAY FOR CUBA.

Two Hundred and Ninety Men, Well Equipped and Armed—Expected to Land at Nuevitas and Join Gomes in an Attack on Puerto Principe.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

JACKSONVILLE, June 8.—A cablegram to the Times-Union from Key West Fla., says: The Times-Union correspondent is informed that an expedition left on Thursday about mid-day, composed of two hundred and ninety men, commanded by Roloff and Sanchez. It is not positively known where the expedition will land. The supposition is it will land at Nuevitas and join Gomes in an attack on Puerto Principe. The expidition consists of 986 white and four colored men, and is well equipped, having 600 rifles, two cannon of the latest make and a torpedo machine and ammunition to last six months, and also four well posted guides, one for each section of the country. It is also accompanied by a prominent Cuban physician and an assistant and a sanitary corps of fourtern, well supplied with medicines. The majority are all young men, all members of leading families on the island Cuba. The revolutionists expect news of the landing by carrier-pigeons, with which the expedition is supplied.

A special to the Times-Union from Fernandina, Florida, says: Nothing further has been seen of the man-of-war which was sighted off Cumberland Sound yesterday by Capt. Woodruff. She was steaming south at the time and has no doubt run down into Southern Florida waters. That she was watching Fernandina harbor and the coast of Florida cannot be doubted. There was a story afloat here this morning that the cruiser had sent a launch into Cumberland Sound which had been stopped at the quarantine station. There is no probability that any Spanish vessel or its boats would make any such attempt, knowing how the Infanta Isabella was treated at Tampa. The Cubans have gone and N. B. Borden is still absent. His yacht was seen last night in Cumberland Sound. The customs officers say Borden's yacht has not cleared for any port and the statement that he is away from Fernandina for a Sunday trip is no doubt correct. Matters here are quiet to-night with practically no new developments.

HORRIBLE WRECK

On a Lumber Railroad in Arkansas—Several Men Fatally Injured.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., June 8.—News of a horrible wreck on a short line railroad, operated by the Little Bay Lumber Co., in Ouachita county, was received here to-day. It occurred near Mrs. Steelman's place, which is known as "Happy Hollow." The train was running at a rapid rate down grade, when the engine left the track, causing the whole train, loaded with logs, to be dumped into a conglomerated mass, men, boys, engine, cars and logs all in a pile. The crash was terrible. Those who escaped gave the alarm, and soon neighbors or friends were gathering in from all directions to assist in rendering aid.

The following is the list of the killed and wounded. Melvin Rutherford, killed instantly; Frank Slon, died from injuries; Joe Arsiman, engineer, died from injuries; Jno. Cathey, left arm fractured; Jno. Chambers, right leg broken; Ed. Hopkins, badly scalded; Jim Wagoner, arm broken; Jack Cathey, slightly bruised. A stranger whose name was given as Dealton was badly cut and bruised about the head, face and legs, and collar-bone and ribs broken. Kinch McDonald, Arthurs King and Holly Williams narrowly escaped with their lives. Williams, King and Jack Cathey were thrown clear over the engine and astride a log, alighting safely.

WARM WIRELETS.

It is estimated that deaths caused by the floods in Wurtemburg and Bavaria exceeded 100.

The trouble at the Bulow Phosphate mine near Charleston, S. C., which grew out of a strike of the miners against a reduction in wages, has been quieted.

Almost every mine along the Norfolk & Western Railroad from the Ohio river to the Elk Horn region is at work with very near their full quota of coal diggers.

Ex-Governor Lewis E. Parsons died in Talladega, Ala., yesterday. He was appointed Provisional Governor of the State in June, 1865, by President Johnson.

At Waycross, Ga., Norman T. Barnes 18 years old, was drowned while bathing in the Saltilla river, in sight of his father, who was unable to reach him in time.

The coroner's jury at Savannah, Ga., found a verdict of murder against Fireman Thomas Pounder, who shot and killed ex-Fireman Frank Keenan at fire headquarters Tuesday last.

Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania, says that the Republican leaders are making a mistake in helping the Democrats to agitate the silver question. Republicans to stick to the tariff if they want to win in 1896.

A special to the Charleston News and Courier from Laurens, S. C., says: Expert Scruggs investigated the local dispensary here and closed it. A shortage of $1,500 is reported and a new man will be put in.

The Marine Hospital Service is advised of the detention at the Gulf quarantine station of the British ship Monrovia, from Rio Janeiro. She had one fatal case of yellow fever at the port of departure and twelve cases and two more death in transit.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Government Employees Cut Out of a Half Holiday—The Income Tax Law—News of The Navy.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, June 8th.—Capt. John A. Howell, commander of the Washington navy yard has passed an examination for promotion to the rank of Commodore.

The Navy Department received a cablegram to-day from Capt. Sumner, commanding the Columbia, announcing that his vessel and the New York sailed this morning for Southhampton.

Admiral Carter reports the arrival of the flagship Baltimore at Hiojo, Japan.

The cruiser Raleigh sailed from Norfolk to-day for New York to participate in the Harlem ship canal opening on the 18th., and the coast defence vessel Amphitrite left Port Royal for Hampton Roads.

The mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court in accordance with its decision upon the income tax law, will be sent today to the attorneys for the appellants in the suits, Seward, Guthrie, Morane ts and Steele, New York city. They will receive it probably on Monday and as soon as they file it in the Circuit Court the formal order will be issued, giving Hyde & Pollick, stockbrokers, the relief they sought against the officers and directors of the Continental Trust and Farmers' Loan and Trust Companies.

Fifteen thousand Government employes are disgusted with the action of the Cabinet in a matter that greatly affects their comfort and convenience. For years it has been the custom to close the Departments in this city at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoons during the summer months, the hour of closing on other days being 4 o'clock. When the question came up this year of issuing the usual orders by the heads of the Departments Secretary Morton, of the Agricultural Department, refused on the ground that the law required the employes to remain at work seven hours every day in the week. The matter was referred to Attorney-General Olney and he sustained his colleague in the view he had taken of the law. Thereupon it was decided by the Cabinet, duly assembled, that all of the Departments should be closed at 4 o'clock Saturdays, the same as on other days. There was an exception in the Interior Department, which closed this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the absence of Secretary Smith, who was not in the city to enforce the Cabinet's decision.

A NEGRO RAVISHER.

Was Lynched Probably in LaFayette County, Florida, Yesterday.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. June 8.—A special to the Times-Union from McAlpin, Fla. says:

News reached here to-day that a negro attempted rape upon a Miss Allen in LaFayette county Thursday night. The negro was captured but broke away and was captured again near Mayo last night. This morning at 7 o'clock a large crowd of citizens had gathered there and news was sent to all the citizens in that part of the county to meet at a certain spot near Mayo at 2:12 sharp, as that was the hour the negro was to be lynched.

The banks now hold $39,667,900 in excess of the requirements of the 25 per cent. rule.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATS.

Bitter Warfare on the Silver Question.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LEXINGTON, June 8.—The action of the Winchester Convention yesterday in endorsing Cleveland and Carlisle and then hooting Gen. Hardin, the free silver candidate for Governor, has added fuel to the hottest campaign waged among Kentucky Democrats in a decade. The lines are bitterly drawn on the currency question alone. It is said that at the State Convention in Louisville two weeks hence the administration forces will attempt to stampede the Convention to ex-Gov. Simon Bolivar Buckner, who is a sound money candidate for the Senate or to Judge Black, of Estelle county.

Secretary Carlisle is expected to return to the State at an early date and canvass Western Kentucky where the silver sentiment is overwhelmiegly strong.

Col. Eli Lilly has presented to the Indianapolis Flower Mission the Walter Q. Gresham homestead in that city to be used as a home for sick children. The house and grounds are large and the latter thickly studded with large trees, many of which were planted by Mr. Gresham.

A QUESTION OF COMMON SENSE.

Nobody has a right to question your common sense, but allow me to ask you a question. Do you do your trading at the Racket Store? If you are not already trading there, why not? it is common sense to do so. Our goods are today the newest and freshest stock. Why is it so? for this reason, we are buying and receiving goods daily. We are today selling more goods for the hard dollar down than any other dry goods store in this city. Constantly turning stock over keeps it new and fresh. We will save you money. Well, how is that? simply this, we buy for cash and sell for cash. We have but one price and that price is the right price, and the same to all. What proof have we that our price is the right price? only this that our trade has increased since we started the one price system fully 50 per cent. This is no hoax, but a dead straight certainty. We have customers to go out on the one price system but they always come.

Our space is so limited we cannot give many prices but here goes a few. 1,000 Women's high crown smooth straw Sailor Hats, blue brown, at 5c. 1,000 Men's assorted Straw Hats, all good goods, worth from 10c to $1 each. To close this big lot of Men and Boys' Hats they are going at 10c each. Forty-five dozen high and low crowned banded trimmed Sailors at 10c each. 250 pair rubber bottom canvas top Shoes at 25 and 35c a pair. 1,200 yards Table Oil Cloth at 10c per yard. 100 fine Linen 6-4 Table Covers, colored borders with fringe, at 50c each, worth $1.00.

Sixty yards of pink dress Shirt Waist, silk, at 18c, worth 40c.

Gent's large Hemstitched Linen Handkerchiefs worth 15c, our price 7c.

Come to us when you want bargains, we will do you good and save you money.

We are on Front street opposite the Market House.

From Dr. Wm. H. Taylor, State Chemist and Professor of Chemistry and Toxicology, Medical College of Virginia:

LABORATORY OF STATE ASSAYER AND CHEMIST, RICHMOND, VA., MAY 9, 1895.

I have analyzed the Tivoli Hofbrau Beer, manufactured by the Robert Portner Brewing Company, of Alexandria, Va., and find that it is pure and, in all respects, of excellent quality. It is unexceptionable as a beverage, and I recommend it especially for medicinal use.

MERCER & GAYLORD

ARE GIVING

Bargains

That will Astonish you more than Ever Before.

ALTHOUGH the advance in Leather and Shoes continues all over this land and country, especially at the great manufacting centers, we had bought out the entire Shoe Stock of H. C. Evans, 115 Princess street, and had placed contracts with manufacturers at old prices, before the rise began, which enables us to hold the prices down, within easy reach of all classes, for some time to come.

We come as near fitting the fancy, the foot and the pocket, as any Shoe Store in the land, when the above three essentials must be met in one fit.

It is useless for us to devote much of this space in quoting prices, but we urge you to call at our place and see the Bargains as they are.

We have Baby Shoes, yet, which are going at 10c per pair. Some Ladies' Button and Lace at 50c. Some Ladies' and Misses' Slippers at 25c (yes, leather, at that). Women's Web Slippers at 10c. Men's Calf Boots at $1.50. Men's Heavy Boots at $1.25—and many lots of other goods in like proportion.

We cordially invite you to examine our stock, and respectfully solicit your patronage.

Mercer & Gaylord,

115 Princess Street.
